

Health Insurance Guide

1. Purpose

This guide explains the company's health insurance program, eligibility requirements, covered medical services, claim procedures, and employee responsibilities.

2. Eligibility

Full-time employees become eligible for health insurance after successfully completing the company's probation period. Eligible dependents may also be enrolled according to plan rules.

3. Coverage

The health insurance plan provides coverage for hospitalization, outpatient treatment, emergency care, preventive health checkups, prescription medications, and specialist consultations subject to policy limits.

4. Exclusions

Cosmetic procedures, experimental treatments, and services specifically excluded by the insurer are generally not covered unless otherwise stated.

5. Claims Process

Employees should submit claims through the approved insurance portal with supporting invoices, prescriptions, medical reports, and payment receipts.

6. Cashless Network

Cashless treatment is available at participating network hospitals upon verification of insurance eligibility.

7. Annual Enrollment

Employees may enroll, update dependent information, or modify coverage during the annual benefits enrollment period or after qualifying life events.

8. Related Documents

Refer to the Employee Benefits Guide, Company Leave Policy, Employee Handbook, and Privacy Policy for additional information regarding employee benefits and personal information.

9. Employee Responsibilities

Employees must provide accurate dependent information, safeguard insurance identification details, and promptly report changes affecting eligibility.

10. Contact Information

Questions regarding coverage, claims, or participating hospitals should be directed to Human Resources or the insurance provider's customer support team.
